They will give a charming program. It will be an interesting affair of the week.

IN AND OUT OF TOWN.
Mrs. H. H. Donnelly, of Washington, formerly Miss Bessie Stearns, of Three Chopt Road.
Mrs. J. Russell Smith, of Huntington, W. Va., who has been in Richmond, has returned to her home.
Mrs. Hannah Catherine Collier, of Stonehill Court, was a guest at Randolph-Macon College for May Day.

Amusements
Singing Indians on Lyric's Hill.
One of the most striking novelties of the past winter season in New York, the dramatic singing sketch in which two full-blooded Indians display their remarkable voices will be among the attractions of the new show which comes to the Lyric tonight for the first half of the week.

of Interest in Virginia and N. C.
Of interest in Richmond and throughout Virginia and North Carolina, is the announcement of the approaching marriage of Miss Louise Neilson Graham, of Mecklenburg County, to William Baker Clark, of Rockingham County. Both of them come from families distinguished as educators in this State. Miss Graham is a descendant of Professor William Graham, founder of Washington and Lee University, and Professor Samuel Lyle Graham, who was professor in the Lyle Theological Seminary for many years.

Mr. Clark is a nephew of Dr. Fred Boatwright, president of the University of Richmond. The wedding will take place some time in June.

Piano and Vocal Recital.
There will be a recital given by some of the piano and vocal students of Mrs. and Mrs. E. Edington Barker in the auditorium of the Woman's Club on Friday evening at 8:30 o'clock. Those taking part are Miss Lena La Pratta, Miss Gwendolyn Hatcher, Miss Virginia Jones, Miss E. Florence Cooke, Miss Margaret Smith, Miss Sue Hunt, Miss Virginia Richardson, Miss Margaret Donald and John Crowder.

Here for Pageant.
Miss Lillian W. Pohlke and daughter, Miss Jessie Pohlke, are the guests of Mrs. John A. Murphy, 1861 Grove Avenue. Mrs. Pohlke was formerly Miss Dorothy Wood sister of Mrs. Murphy. She and her daughter will be in Richmond for the pageant after which they will leave for Chicago, where they will be joined by Mr. Pohlke.

Quakers Attend Friends' Meetings.
WINCHESTER, VA., May 14.—Friends quarterly meeting, held annually at historic Hopewell Meeting House, near Clearbrook, attracted immense crowds. Quakers came from many sections of Virginia and nearby States, but the greater number were city and town residents out for a day in the country. Among the principal speakers were Dr. and Mrs. O. Edward Janney, of Baltimore, and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Lawton, of New York. The quarterly meeting will conclude with a business session tomorrow. Friends have been holding their May quarterly at Hopewell for more than 125 years.

Book Social.
On Monday, May 22, at 7:30 o'clock in the parish hall of Epiphany Church of Barton Heights, there will be a book social under the auspices of the Church Workers' Society. The entire program will be rendered by small clubs.

Subscription Dance Tonight.
An attractive event of the week will be the subscription dance given under the auspices of the Sacred Heart Alumnae at the Cathedral Boys' School, corner Fifth Avenue and Spruce Streets, on Monday at 9 o'clock. Mrs. William Wolfe is chairman of the affair, assisted by Miss Catherine Shaughnessy in

HOW TO SAVE WHEN SHOPPING

By Ruth Leigh, Author of "The Human Side of Retail Selling," "The A B C of Retailing," etc.

How often have you bought a material or a garment that you thought was silk, satin or brocade, only to find, after washing, that it was a plain cotton material and that the silky sheen of glass had disappeared? That is because you bought goods that was an imitation of mercerized cotton.

True mercerized cotton of good quality not only looks like, but has many of the properties of linen, and finds many uses in our home, for clothing, table linen and other domestic purposes. Real mercerized cotton is made by treating ordinary cotton either in the yarn or in the piece with a solution of sodium hydroxide, and then stretching it while drying. It thus becomes stronger, develops a high luster and takes dyes well.

Mercerized cotton is often imitated by passing the fabric over heated rollers with many fine raised surfaces upon them. This process produces a luster, but it disappears when the fabric is laundered. This deception may be detected by washing and rubbing it in water. Often, too, in the imitation, the luster is only on one side. True mercerized cotton has a luster on both sides.

The same tests may be used to identify mercerized cotton thread as for ordinary cotton we discuss these tests on another day, except that the mercerized cotton thread is much stronger and has a greater luster. Mercerization increases the cost of a material, but it greatly increases the wearing value from two standpoints. The strength and the ability to take and retain color. Thus mercerized cotton is well worth paying.

Dishrag Wins Over Broom.
WINCHESTER, VA., May 14.—The dishrag is more useful than a broom, according to judges who heard "evidence" in a spirited debate at Round Hill schoolhouse last night. Dishrag advocates took the negative side of the question and claim to have won easily. Some men present said they had had experience with both, and would prefer taking chances with a broom than a greasy dishrag in the hands of a scolding wife.
